Additional Information

I hold an M.A in law and a Ph.D. in public international law, both from the University of Lodz, where I currently work as an assistant professor of international public law. I teach and research all areas of international law, including human rights.

My particular research focus is on human rights online and cybersecurity, having published extensively on the issue.

Between 2015 and 2017 I worked for the Council of Europe in Ukraine and Moldova on a series of pilot projects training local judges in the protection of human rights online, covering, among others, issues of jurisdiction, freedom of expression, privacy and the right to assembly. I advise the Sino-European Cyber Dialogue on human rights issues pertinent to this crosscultural venue. I am actively involved
